

“FrontRow” Viewer Install Instructions

To install the FrontRow Viewer you will need to make sure that Microsoft’s .NET Framework 1.1 is installed to your computer. To do this, click on “Start” → “Settings” → “Control Panel” Once the Control Panel is open double-click on “Add or Remove Programs” and see if the Microsoft .NET Framework 1.1 is there. (See Figure 1) If so, it is installed. If not, you can download and install the Framework from the Windows Updates website.

To get to the Windows Update website, start Internet Explorer. Once open, click on “Tools” → “Windows Updates”. This will take you to the Windows Update website. You will want to click on “Custom” so that you can choose install options other than the most critical. Once Microsoft has determined which updates need to be applied to your computer, click on “Software, Optional” on the left side of the screen. Scroll to .NET Framework 1.1 and checkmark the box, then download and apply updates as usual.
